WASHINGTON, July 6.-The indications are that only one or two, if any, of the members of the Jackson faction recently convicted of murder in connection with the Choctaw troubles will ever be executed. Some months ago, when the Locke and Jones factions were on the point of meeting in battle, a careful investigation was made, to determine who were the egally constituted authorities of the tribe. The conclusion reached was that Governor Wilson Jones was undountedly entitled to recognition, and Inspector Faison was sent to the scene of the threatened trouble with instructions to support Governor Jones, as the representative of the national government, but at the same time to do all in his power to induce liberal and conall in his power to induce liberal and con-servative treatment toward the insurrec-tionists, provided the latter returned to their homes quietly and respected the laws. At the recent trials a number of men were convicted of murder and some of manslaughter. Others were found not guilty, and still others were held for trial. Desiring to carry out the original inten-tion of the department, that the law should be recognized, but that the guilty should be treated with all reasonable leniency, on June 30 Secretary Smith seat the following letter to Inspector Faison: "You will call upon Governor Wilson Jones and advise him that the proposed execution of so large a number of me, re-cently convicted in the Choctaw court,

The communications of Inspector Falson, in furnishing his reports as to the situation, sent to the department, while they show sent to the department, while they show that he has carried out the instructions of the department by supporting the duly constituted authorities, indicate an entire freedom from bias, and show no uncalled for criticisms upon the Locke faction. It is hoped by the department that through the use of firmness, tempered with kind-ness, peace may be permanently restored between the warring factions of the Choc-

caused by orders from Governer Jones. An application was made this afternoon for a rehearing of the prisoner's cases, and the rehearing was granted on the same evidence presented to the court at Musicogee. Judge Hoiston ordered a stay of execution of sentence until Aug. 4, by which time a new trial may be had.

About noon today some of the militia indulged in too much whisky, said in making arrests a riot in their own ranks was only averted by placing the drunken Indians in chains. About this time a report was circulated that Locke, with 400 men, was moving up the valley. Somewhat of a panic ensued, but the militia remained cool-headed, and could have easily repelled the attack of twice the number reported. Many of the white cluizens sought refuge in the woods and out of the way places. The report was not confirmed, however, and by sundown much of the scare had blown over, and the whites gradually returned to their bones.

Very little excitement ensued here when it became known that the prisoners had gained a new lease of life. The Jones faction seemed disposed to accept quietly the new phase in the case, and the opposing faction, naturally, was not displeased. Their satisfaction is not being manifested in an offensive way, and no bitterness among them is apparent, on the surface at in an offensive way, and no bitterness among them is apparent, on the surface at least. Tomorrow great crowds of Indians of both factions will be on the ground to witness the execution of the sentences, which they do not yet know will not take place. What may happen then it is im-possible to say. The vindictive nature of the Indians may lead to trouble. This evening all is quiet.

THE CHEROKEE STRIP. FORT GIBSON, I. T., July 6.—Word has been received from Tahlequah that J. L. Adair, a prominent merchant of that place, is in receipt of a letter from a Cherokee at Washington, stating that a trade for the strip bonds had been consummated, and that one-quarter of the whole amount, with accrued interest, has already been paid to the assistant treasurer at St. Louis, the baiance to be paid in thirty, sixty and ninety days' time, dating from the first of July. It is not stated who are the purchasers.

LONDON, July 6.-The marriage of the duke of York, Prince George of Wales, and Princess May of Teck took place at 12:30 o'clock today in the royal chapel of St. James' palace. The wedding was a brilliant function, and was attended by a large gathering of the British royal family, foreign sovereigns or their representatives, and many members of the highest nobility. The weather was beautiful, and the occasion was made one of national rejoicing and a partial British holiday. The route of the procession was gaily and pro-fusely decorated, and was lined with hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic spectators. The roadway was kept open by household troops in glittering uniforms, by detachments drawn from the various military departments, by metropolitan volunteers and militia, by Middlesex yeomanry and London police.

The ceremony eclipsed in splendor any manry and London police.

The ceremony collosed in splendor any recent state ceremonial in connection with the British court. The royal party left Buckingham palace in four processions. The first was composed of members of the household and distinguished guests. The second included the dake of York and his supporters, the prince of Wales and the duke of Edinburgh. The bride came in the third procession, accompanied by her father, the duke of Teck and her brother, Prince Adolphus of Teck. The last procession was that of the queen, who, accompanied by the duchess of Teck and the younger sons, and the grand duke of Hesse, drove in state to the ceremonial. Each procession was escorted by a life guards escort. The queen had in addition an escort of Indian native and Australian horse. As the queen's carriage passed through the streets the cheering which greeted it was immense. The members of the royal family and the guests, on alighting at St. James' palace, walked to the state apartments and subsequently down the grand staircase under the color court colonnade to the seats reserved in the chapel. Her majesty alighted in the embassadors' court under a specially erected canopy over the glass doors of the passage leading to the chapel. Thence she walked to the haut pas at the north end of the edifice. The spot was beautifully adorned. Upon the same platform seats were provided for the prince and princess of Wales, the bride and bridegroom and for royal family and dress.

The ceremony opened with a procession of clergy into the chapel. This consisted of the archbishop of Canterbury, the bishop of London, the dean of the chapel bishop of London, the dean of the chapel royal, the sub-dean, the bishop of Rochester, the Hon. and Kev. E. Carr-Glyn, vicar of Kensington, Canon Hervry, domestic chapiain to the prince of Wales, and Canon Dalton, chapiain to the duke of York. Handel's march from the "Occasional Overture" was played by the organist, and the procession came forward. While the clergy were taking their places the march in "Scipio" was played. places the march in "Scipio" was played, and immediately a second procession, including the royal family and the royal guests, came in sight, and its members were conducted to seats as they entered. Arthur Sullivan's "Imperial March" was played as the guern's procession, walked played as the queen's procession walked up the aisle. Two hundred persons were prostrated by heat and excitement and were carried away from the crowd, but all resovered before being taken to hospitals. Dispatches from Londonderry say that the Orangemen today showed their resentment of the government's attitude toward home rule by refusing to celebrate the royal marriage.

The duke and his wife arrived at Walferton station at So'clock this evening and were cheered by thousands. Ecotred by the officers of the Suffolk Hussars they drove in an open victoria to the Bachelor's cottage in the grounds around Sundringham hall. Throngs of countrymen cheered all along the road and children scattered flowers around the carriage. The school children threw flowers as the bride entered the house. An hour later the bridal couple were seremaded and fleworks were stoff outside the grounds. Fibrines George Frederick Ernest Albert, duke of York, earl of Inverness and baron of Killarney, K. C.
